PART FIVE

The Investor Activity Dial™

THE INVESTOR ACTIVITY DIAL™

ACTIVE

You are “hands-on” in some, or all, of your investing activity. You usually work directly with some, or all, of the transaction team including realtors, contractors, appraisers, etc. You are responsible for making decisions that directly impact the activity of the investment. Your goals include being directly involved in some or all aspects of the investment activity.

Example: Your portfolio consists of rehab or income properties fully managed by you, and your activity consists of raising other people’s money through private equity or private lending to acquire more property.

BLENDED

Your investment activity is a blend between active and passive. Your portfolio contains some investments that you are actively responsible to manage and/or make decisions for, and some investments that are fully passive and hands off.

Example: Your portfolio consists of a mix of income properties, rehab properties and/or turnkey properties along with private lending and/or private equity investments. You like to diversify along two or all three of the investing streams. Your activity consists of managing your total portfolio along with day-to-day management and/or decision making of property. Your total ROI is a blend of the active and passive investment returns.

PASSIVE

You are “hands-off” in your investing activity. You rarely work directly with the transition team (such as realtors, contractors, appraisers, etc.) You generally have little to no direct decision-making ability regarding the activity of the investment. You want to earn your return on investment with as little involvement as possible.

Example: Your portfolio consists of private equity investments, private lending investments, or income properties fully managed by someone else. Your activity consists of managing your passive portfolio for diversification and maximum returns.
